“Nobody can make you feel inferior without your permission” Eleanor Roosevelt

“Beyond the Silence”

By Ira Franco Your Partner Your Life Coach

The words are silent; no one hears the cry of joy when their favorite team wins the championship, you do not hear the cries of excitement watching your son take his first steps and you do not hear the laughter shared with friends around a campfire under the full moon.

The messages are short; there is only room for a limited number of words to describe an experience. The messages are straightforward; there is only one way to express one’s feelings. There are no misunderstandings because with a short and direct message the level of communication is effective.

Your patience is tested; you must wait for your turn to communicate because if everyone tries to talk at the same time, nobody understands anything.

The attention is authentic; the people communicating are always alert and stay connected with each other at every moment so they do not lose the thread of conversation.

Respect exists as the voice volume is zero; no one shouts or gets hurt.

Wrong assumptions do not apply.

It is amazing what you can learn and appreciate from the world of the deaf. There is always a pending conversation or an experience you want to share beyond the silence!
